The engravings in the Atelier Collection are hand-made by skilled craftsmen using traditional techniques. Each quality-controlled print takes approximately four weeks to dry. When the ink has fully dried through the process of oxidation, the print can then be uniquely hand-coloured by a professional artist using watercolour painting techniques. Rosenstiel's maintains a stock of all the images in the Atelier Collection catalogue and will always endeavour to meet customer orders with all possible speed. However, in the rare event that an image may be out of stock, and in view of the time and craftsmanship required to create and colour each engraving, please allow up to two months for the delivery of an out of stock item.
