

ANAHATA KATKIN

- is an Alaskan-bred, West Coast-based, American artist. She developed her passion for the arts by trial-and-error discovery. Anahata's work is a synergy between painting, drawing, design and handmade, mixed media pieces. She has woven a heart centred landscape of off-beat icons and illustrations that comprise the spectrum of her signature aesthetic. Anahata is inspired to bounce between her life as an artist, mother, entrepreneur, traveller and boutique-maker. The facets of Anahata's professional and personal life merge together in what she likes to call, "Creative Abandon". A credo that to her, simply means a life of purpose, passion and creative authenticity rolled into a singular goal. "I like the place where pretty and gritty meet. Where flowers, faces and ink run together. I'm inspired endlessly by plants, travel, textiles, folk arts, Asian influences and faces...always faces. I build artwork then I tend to overlay a character or mood that I feel emerges as I go. I believe in working from impulse-to-impulse and not thinking too hard during the process. I make artwork from the inside out then take it from there."
